On this occasion I wish to express our sincere appreciation for the excellent consultative work which you have performed for us during your three brief but very profitable tours-of-duty. I cannot help but recall the developmental work which finally culminated in the establishment and functioning of a photographic office and also the tedious organizational details worked out so thoroughly by you to make it an effective, productive unit.

We should like to feel free to call on you at some time in the future as the needs of our program develop. It is anticipated that during the next year our major efforts will be toward stabilization and internal growth and development along the lines of many of your suggestions. I extend the best wishes of your friends on our staff and, for my part, sincerely hope that the occasion will develop when we can renew the cordial relationships developed over the past several years.

Sincerely yours,
